to Draft Another Resolution for Congress.

BIG MEETING HERE ENDS IN HARMONY

Former Gov. Hanly to Start "Washington Dry in 1916" Movement Tomorrow.

After providing for the appointmen of a special committee to draft a reso-lution for nation-wide prohibition to be submitted to Congress for its action at the next session, the conference of temperance leaders which was held vesterday in the Cavalry Baptist Church, 8th and H streets northwest, adjourned late yesterday afternoon. Dr. A. J. Barton of Texas, who was chosen president of the conference, will ppoint the members of the committee He and three other officers of the conference selected yesterday will be exofficio members of this committee. The other officers are Dr. Charles Scanlon of Pittsburgh, secretary: Miss Anna Gordon of the Illinois W. C. T. U., vice president, and Mrs. Beauchamp of the W. C. T. U., assistant secretary.

The meeting of the conference yes terday was held behind closed doors, and while at times it threatened to become stormy, it finally ended in comcome stormy, it maily ended in com-plete harmony, it was announced later. Members of the conference realized, it is said, that amendments must be made to the so-called Hobson-Sheppard pro-hibition amendment which was before hibition amendment which was before Congress at its last session, and it was for the purpose of discussing what these amendments should be that the conference was held. A thorough discussion of the entire situation was had, and it is expected that the committee appointed to frame the resolution for nation-wide prohibition will be guided by the discussion at the conference meeting yesterday.

that once they can get their resolution providing for the submission of constitutional amendment through Congress, the battle will be won. The delegates to the conference came The delegates to the conference came to Washington from the big temperance meeting which recently closed in Atlantic City. They were representatives of the Anti-Saloon League of America, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and other organizations working for prohibition. At the meeting in Atlantic City the prohibitionists went on record as determined to make the District of Columbia "dry" next year. While this subject was discussed by some of the delegates informally yesterday, the question was not yesterday, the question was not brought up in the meeting yesterday for discussion, it was said.

brought up in the meeting yesterday for discussion, it was said.

Dr. P. A. Baker, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, early in the meeting urged that the deliberations of the conference be constituted a "family affair" upon the grounds that if anything sensational developed the newspapers would "play it up," while overlooking the serious work of the conference.

Dr. Paker moved also that all those who attending the meeting who lacked proper credentials be excluded from the meeting, stating that this would operate not only to keep out foes of prohibition, but also would prevent any details from getting into the newspapers which the delegates might prefer to have left out.

Officials Say Present Issue Is Most Difficult Problem President Has Had to Solve

Official and unofficial opinion last night candidly admitted that President Wilson has before him now the most ifficult problem he has yet attempted o solve in connection with the German submarine question as it bears upon the destruction of American lives and prop-

when the President sent his first note, after the terrible catastrophe at sea, public opinion was unanimously with him. Whatever he did and said had the backing of the masses of the people who were not influenced by racial or other prejudices. When he wrote his second note he still had the sentiment of the country with him. But now, according to the views of many persons, he must go on with the The controlling factor in the situation, according to indications in official quarters, is the attitude the United States should take as a result of the Lusitania tragedy itself. It is that which is giving officials most concernthe shaping of a course that will maintain the dignity of the United States and give promise of obtaining some satisfactory settlement of the dispute. There was no denial in any quarter with grave possibilities. This was indicated, however, in the undertone of comment rather than in any direct way.

On the law of the case, the American position was held by officials to be absolutely impregnable because it was founded on the well recognized principles by which nations have long been guided. A deadlock has been reached, it was declared, on the legal interpretations respectively held by Germany and the United States on submarine warfare as affecting the rights of neutrals.

The Lusitania horror has almost passed out of the minds of millions of persons, It is the old story of human forgetfulness of the flesh that has gone: the cooling of passions aroused by an unusual horror. Added to this is the known fact that the average American is elses interested in the European war now than he has been in the past; that he has become so accustomed to the stories of the horrors of war he is accupied with his own affairs; that he has been on accustomed to the stories of the horrors of war he is accupied with his own country these horrors of war he is an adventure of calamity occurs; and, above everything else, he is hugely pleased that in his own country these horrors of war he is an adventure of the minds of mildions of proventure as the colon of passions aroused by an unusual horror. Added to this is the known fact that the average American is elses interested in the European war now than he has been in the past; that he has become so accustomed to the stories of the horrors of war he is accurately an accurate of the minds of mildions of proventure and the hunter of the dispute.

There was no denial i many persons, he must go on with the controversy, not sure as to what the claims, all based upon her necessities. Thousands of citizens who do not want their country involved in the European trouble have found themselves perfectly willing to accept some of the arguments of Germany rather than to continue a policy of believing that the American contention has been unanswerable.

All these and many other elements have entered into the change in a situation that was at one time unanimous so far as public sentiment went. The burden of responsibility of the President grows immensely under condi-tions as they now exist, it was gen-erally admitted today.

tions as they now exist, it was erally admitted today.

The President, it is pointed out, must weigh the divided sentiment in this country most carefully before he again answers Germany. On one side he will find a large and intelligent part of the population which will insist on the United States standing strictly by its shetreet rights; on the other, a strong abstract rights; on the other, a strong and is willing for the President to settle it as he deems best.

It was the prevailing belief in official quarters last night that the President will stand by his postion and strongly insist that Germany shall accept the contentions of the government of the United States, and that he will indicate that he does not wish to carry on a long correspondence on the subject. But what is he to do if Germany continues to be polite, and either evades and is willing for the President to set tically states that it will not agree to what the President proposes?

here would not say. Many of them, however, did not hesitate to comment on the apparent similarity in the proposals made by Germany with the views expressed by former Secretary Bryan. There have been frequent intimations, too, through official sources here, that since the resignation of Mr. Bryan high German officials believed public sentiment in the United States was divided and would not continue unanimously to support the position taken by President Wilson.

Editorial comment of American newspapers was read with deep interest by officials and there was satisfaction when it was learned that apparently the newspaper attitude largely coincided with the official view here—that the German suggestions could not be accepted.

Outwardly executive quarters displayed the normal half-holiday air of quiet. Secretary Lansing spent the afternoon at home at work on memoranda on the situation. Secretary Tumulty was in frequent communication by telephone with President Wilson.

The second is to aid in establishing a standard system of bookkeeping and cost account. The two are interdependent.

The commission has in mind, Mr. Hurley announced, dividing the country into zones and maintaining in each, experts in accounting, costs and manufacturing, upon whom manufacturers, merchants and business men may call for advice and assistance in establishing economies. "The small manufacturer, the country storekeeper and the retail mer-chant as a rule," he said, "do not get chant as a rule," he said, "do not get all the banks' credit that they ought to receive, owing to the fact that they are unable to present balance sheets in accordance with good business prac-tice. These men are just as good busi-ness men, in many respects, as those of larger operations. They have brains, ability, knowledge of their wares and of their customers, but they do not of their customers, but they do not speak the language of the banker, in that they are not able to present a statement showing their true assets and lightlitter. and liabilities.

"Frequently a business man with a credit of a few hundred dollars at his bank, based wholly on personal grounds, could, if he sould produce a reliable balance sheet, readily obtain several thousand dollars, which would enable him to expand his business along sound lines. Failing to obtain it, his business is limited and confined.

"Bankers are in business to loan money to business men, and recognize that loans made on balance sheets that are sound are desirable loans. The banker will welcome any standard of statement that will permit him easily to ascertain the exact liabilities and assets of his customer.

Need Accounting Standard.

"It is recognized that no one standard form of accounting can be applied to all classes of business, and that special forms must be devised for each group or class of commerce and industry. For example, the coal industry can use one standard system of accounting.

A purse containing seventy-seven tended collar-gold pieces, other personal offerings, bringing the amount to $1,000, and a handsome watch fob, suitably engraved, were presented to Mgr. James F. Mackin, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, on behalf of the Sunday school teachers and pupils Friday night. The presentations were made by Rev. James E. Krug, spiritual director.

A second purse, with $3,100 inclosed, was presented to the pastor as a contribution from the parishioners for the needs of the church. Among those present Friday evening were Rev. Hugh Curley, Miss Loretto Sullivan, superintendent of the Sunday school; Miss Alice Sullivan, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school; Miss Alice Sullivan, assistant superintendent; Miss Geraldine Bartholomew, secretary; Miss Annie Wenig, Miss Margaret Reed, Miss Emily Quinn, Miss Rose Shanley, Mrs. William Mack, D. W. Carroll and Ignatius Straub.

Passengers Report Steamship Bottom Side Up in White Sea.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Officers and passengers on the Russian steamship Czar, that arrived here today from Archangel, said they had sighted in the White sea June 27, when within a day's run of Archangel, a wrecked steamship, floating bottom up in the sea, surrounded by a mass of wreckage and cargo.

The Czar steamed round the wreck several times searching for survivors, but none was found. The identity of the ship was not determined, the name on her stern having been partly oblicerated with only the letters U M L O showing. The latter were thought to have been part of the name on her stern having been partly oblicerated with only the letters U M L O showing. The loater were thought to have been part of the name of the haling port, London.

The boats of the ship were smashed in, evidently by a mine or torpedo.
